

LEADER OUTLINES DRIVES OF LEGION TO-HELP COUNTRY

Commander MacNider Asserts
Veterans Are Busy Combating Evils of Nation.

By HANFORD MACNIDER
(National Commander.)

Editor's Note—Hanford MacNider is known to all Americans as the active head of the American Legion. His war record is a fine one and to that he is steadily adding a record for clean leadership of a powerful organization. The American Legion must be counted in on every national activity or movement. The men of the legion believe in and trust Commander MacNider. As an American you can do the same in reading the following:

The guiding motive of the American Legion is to keep alive at least some part of the wonderful spirit of service that animated everyone in 1917 and 1918. If even a flicker of that spirit can be preserved and turned to good account legion men feel that their organization will not have existed in vain.

The application of such a spirit of service to national problems may be known as Americanism. The legion has already succeeded in passing or is working to pass in every state school laws covering the teaching of the American constitution. It is working to build up in the coming generation vivid realization of what American citizenship is, what American institutions are and how and why they should be respected. Many states already are carrying out in the schools complete programs written by the legion which will inspire a new kind of citizenship in the years that are not far away.

The legion is working actively to combat radicalism. It has taken an active and very influential stand against class and sect selfishness and intolerance in every form. The legion is working toward the passage of sound immigration laws and for adequate military and naval defense for the country.

Work Is Practical.
The legion's work is very practical and not visionary and it is local—in thousands of American communities—and not merely national. Almost everyone of the 11,000 legion posts can show concrete examples of good work done for the community. Out in Kansas, a post adopts a Boy Scout troop; in Wisconsin the legion stands sponsor for the education and citizenship of an alien who had worn the American uniform; in Missouri, a post plants trees on a highway; in New York, the legion raises $25,000 to buy a sanitarium for the tubercular ex-service men. The examples are myriad.

Then there is the International Veterans federation, that was practically sponsored by the legion. It is a dream but it is near to coming true and its possibilities are far-reaching.

The federation embraces representatives of ex-service men's organizations in all the allied countries. It aims at such an interchange of ideas and such a preservation of the spirit of comradeship of the war, that conflict or even ill will between late allies must be impossible.

The federation has made great strides in organization. It has expected that even more will be accomplished after the convention of delegates from the allied countries in New Orleans in October, just prior to the legion national convention.

The legion has always been first in the fight to obtain justice for the disabled of the late war. Surely, it is a genuine community service for the legion to lead the way in demanding proper care for those comrades of ours who came back blind, maimed and broken in health and body and who must live the war forever in the homes and hospitals of our country.

Gave Their Best.

These men gave their best that all of us might enjoy continued safety and citizenship in this country of ours. Certain organizations and a few individuals have succeeded in arousing some interest in behalf of the disabled veterans but the American Legion, backed by the press of the country, has not only written, pushed but actually put through congress every bit of legislation for the disabled men.

It is perfectly safe to say that had it not been for the legion, the shameful neglect and disgraceful treatment of these men would still exist. The adjusted compensation legislation did not originate with the American Legion but with congress. Legion men were told at their first convention that national legislators wanted to know the best way to adjust the pay of the service men. They said they realized this should be done but had nearly a hundred bills before them and wanted the thought of the legion. Then the legion wrote the five-fold compensation bill and turned it over with recommendations. Then, from thousands of platforms all over the country, the men who are now representing us down in Washington promised these four million men that they were going to fulfill an obligation. They put it over with returned service population in the state of mind where they feel that they have been promised something—and now are in danger of having the promise repudiated.

Put Them to Work.
Through the efforts of the legion it now appears that this promise will not be repudiated.

Recently the legion has been bending all its efforts to put every returned service man to work. The legion believes this man should have a chance to earn an honest living and lead a useful life in the nation he offered his life to save. It is the nation's business that this be done.

The legion has been wonderfully successful in this effort and feels that it has accomplished something that rebounds to the credit of the whole nation.

no greater field for service to the country exists than through such a medium.

Boys From Nine States

Register for "Eberhart"

Boys from nine states have already registered for stays of varying lengths at Camp Eberhart, the Y. M. C. A. camp at Corey Lake, Michigan. Last year boys from 11 different states, including Texas, New York, and the District of Columbia, attended the camp, and it is thought that that record may be surpassed this summer.

Camp Eberhart is primarily a South Bend and Mishawaka boys' camp. George A. Cooper, who will act as camp director, along with other officials of the local "Y" is desirous that no boy in the two cities be turned away. It is thought, however, that all places for the first term from June 26 to July 10, will be filled within the next few days, and boys who wish to attend the camp during this period are advised to get their registrations in immediately.

The camp is divided into four terms of two weeks each, running from June 26 to August 21. At that time the staff will supervise a camp program for girls under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A.

FORMER NURSE SAYS TANLAC IS WITHOUT EQUAL

Fort Wayne Woman Tells How It Completely Overcame Serious Stomach Trouble—Husband Also Received Remarkable Benefits.

"I used to be a nurse and I think I know a good medicine when I see it, so I don't hesitate to recommend Tanlac," said Mrs. C. A. Sheets, 808 W. Superior St., Ft. Wayne, Ind. "The 'flu' left me terribly weak and run down. Everything I ate caused awful burning sensations in my stomach and kept me in constant pain. I had sick headaches, dizziness and was so nervous I trembled like a leaf. My kidneys bothered me a great deal and I had no energy at all."

"Remembering how my father and mother got such good results from Tanlac when I was at home with them I started taking the medicine too. It gave me a wonderful appetite and only three bottles relieved me of all my troubles. My husband took the medicine also after he had the 'flu' and it set him right in a little while. We think Tanlac is the greatest medicine in the world."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

BUTTING BLOCK SAVES LIVES AND PROPERTY

TAMPA, Fla., June 8.—Action of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway in putting new butting blocks at the end of its side tracks on Water street, near Lafayette, at the instigation of the city, following a spectacular accident during which a freight train was backed into the warehouse of the Thompson Electric Company, causing damage of $10,000, has saved serious damage and possibly loss of life in another crash, it is believed.

Backing down one of the sidings a few days ago a freight train struck one of the butting blocks with great force, almost tearing it to pieces, although it had been constructed in the strongest manner known to railway engineers. Part of the butting block was knocked twenty-five feet. At the time of the accident when the warehouse was damaged the train backed across several street-car tracks and one of the main business streets, including a sidewalk crowded with pedestrians. That no one was killed or seriously injured was considered remarkable.
